BIG TYPHOON STRIKES MANILA

ACCEPT TERMS OF OWNERS AND COME BACK TO SURFACE

Striking Hungarian Coal Miners End Long Period of Starvation Underground—Men Crazy by Hunger Tied to Posts by Comrades

PECS, Hungary, Oct. 16 (AP).—After five days of self-imposed imprisonment, under the earth, 1,200 coal miners came to the surface at daybreak and accepted terms for settlement of their strike. Many of them were so weakened from their confinement, without food or water, that they had to be carried to the top on stretchers.

Others were in such desperate condition that they could not be brought up. It was not known whether any were dead, but some were feared to be mad. The group had threatened mass suicide if their demands for higher wages were not met.

TROOPS AND GUNS
Government troops with machine guns in readiness kept order at the mouth of the mine as hysterical wives greeted the men.

Peace emissaries were rushed to the mine after the owners and the Hungarian Government had worked out a compromise.

The owners were goaded into action by public opinion aroused over the plight of the miners, who had banded together to die by suffocation rather than continue trying to support themselves on wages of less than $2 a week.

The owners agreed to eliminate a wage cut, to raise the working time from two to three days per week, and to pay a bonus of $3.00 per head to help tide over the winter.

DEATH FOR MEDIATOR
Late last night the miners threatened death to General Janos Estergalyos, Democratic-Socialist member of the Hungarian Parliament, who sought to mediate with them.

"Don't come down or you won't return," the miners' armed sentries told Estergalyos.

"I expected a terrible catastrophe in coal mines any moment," stated Estergalyos.

"What I saw down there will be the most terrible remembrance of my life."

STILL HUNTING FOR MRS. STOLL

Efforts to Obtain Release of Kidnapped Woman Continue Fruitless

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 15 (AP).—We have no reason to believe she is alive," said the United States Department of Justice today in the Alice Speed Stoll kidnapping mystery today. The Department of Justice investigator in charge, Harold Nathan, in expressing this view at a press conference, added in response to another query, "We're working at top speed."

Despite the blank wall which Federal, city and state detectives face in their efforts to recover the young society woman, kidnapped for $50,000 ransom, there were others who were optimistic.

WAITING IMPATIENTLY
The family have been waiting impatiently and are understood to be willing to forward the ransom, originally sent to Nashville, to any other place the man might desire.

Stoll's friends said he appeared to be more hopeful today of his wife's ultimate return. He maintained the same complete silence he has for two days. A friend explained that the family felt any false step might hamper Mrs. Stoll's return, or endanger her life.

TO START DARING FLIGHT SATURDAY

Kingsford-Smith Blames Delay in Obtaining Certificate for Failure to Take Part in Race

SYDNEY, Australia, Oct. 16 (AP).—Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, Australian aviator, today said that part of the responsibility for his failure to enter the England-to-Australia race, which starts next Saturday, rests with a testing pilot who flew his reconditioned plane to the United States Department of Commerce airdrome near Los Angeles. He said the pilot failed to obtain a departmental certificate, and that this omission caused a month's delay.

Kingsford-Smith is preparing to start a flight for San Francisco, planning to take off shortly after dawn Saturday.

Where Air Race to Australia Will End

With about nineteen of the sixty-six planes originally entered, left in the contest, the air race from England to Australia will start this week. The race will finish at Flemington Race Course, Melbourne, shown above, where a throng such as that shown is expected to greet the winners. Inset is Sir Macpherson Robertson, donor of $75,000 in prizes for the race.

MINISTER GIVEN ROUGH GREETING

RT. Hon. Walter Elliott Peited With Eggs and Tomatoes by Glasgow Students

GLASGOW, Oct. 15 (AP).—RT. Hon. Walter Elliott, Minister of Agriculture, was pelted with eggs and tomatoes today at a students' union meeting.

Mrs. Elliott, recent bride, was also struck. Mr. Elliott suffered a direct hit on the head with a ripe tomato which spread over his face. The front of his coat was dripping with egg from a missile that broke on a screen over his head.

The curtain was drawn in front of the minister and his wife, but Mr. Elliott almost immediately returned to the stage to face the boisterous students alone. This was the signal for another fusillade, but the minister stood his ground.

Order was restored after protests had been voiced against the behavior of a minority in the hall.

Within a few minutes, another message reported that the Ss. Charcas was standing by the stricken vessel, the harbor radio said. The message was received at 11:20 p.m.

BOUND FOR PORTLAND

The Point San Pedro left San Francisco on Saturday night for Portland, E. C. Beniten, Seattle manager of the McCormick Steamship Company, operators, said on being informed of the distress signal.

Under command of Captain Ecklund, she carries a crew of about thirty men, he said. She is a 5,000-ton ship.

NO DETAILS GIVEN
The San Francisco coast guard station said it had requested vessels in the vicinity of the Point San Pedro to go to the aid of the burning ship. Other than the brief message, the station said it had received no details of the freighter's plight, but that it appeared to be serious.

JOINS WAR'S GREAT DEAD

Raymond Poincare, Patriot of France, Succumbs to Paralysis

PARIS, Oct. 15 (AP).—The body of Raymond Poincare, who served the France he loved with passionate patriotism, as war-time president, will be buried on Saturday in the little family cemetery at Nubecourt, near Bar-le-Duc.

Poincare, broken by long illness, died early today, at the age of seventy-four. His labors for his country had taxed too greatly, his physical resistance.

A stroke of paralysis, which reached his heart, ended the life of the man who was described as the last of France's war great and the savior of his money.

His health had long been poor, weakened, as he once said he was, "by the succession of emotional shocks" he experienced as President during the war, and his battles, as Premier, later, to collect reparations from Germany by occupation of the Ruhr, and to stabilize the franc.

LAST GREAT CHIEF
Poincare was the last of France's four Great War chiefs. Foch, Joffre and Clemenceau are gone. Of the school of noted statesmen that were his contemporaries, which included Viviani, Briand and Caillaux, there

May Resort To Extreme Penalties

GENEVA, Oct. 15 (AP).—Goaded by failure of conciliation efforts, and apparently determined to halt the war in South America's Chaco Boreal, even if it requires resort to extreme penalties, the League of Nations today convened an extraordinary assembly for November 20.

The action is the same as that taken in the Sino-Japanese conflict when the Assembly's expressed disapproval of Japan's military policies in Manchuria resulted in her giving notice of withdrawal from the League.

The decision was made by a consultative committee of twenty-two in which Russia made its bow as a working member.

Most Disastrous Storm for Many Years Rages Over Philippine Capital—Houses in Parts of City Destroyed, But More Substantial Withstand Wind—Communication Difficult

MANILA, Oct. 16 (AP).—A raging typhoon which tossed four ships aground, spread heavy damage throughout Manila for five hours this morning, but no deaths were reported up until noon.

Sweeping up suddenly, the terrific winds and torrential rain dealt the city and its surroundings the worst damage since 1920, when a similar storm occurred.

The Atlantic Gulf, a 2,693-ton salvage vessel and the Santa Rita, small inter-island ship, were blown ashore on Dewey Boulevard, wide avenue which skirts Manila Bay. The Ulises and Gregory, also inter-island boats, were driven ashore at other points.

Streets became debris-laden rivers. Tramways, telephone and light services went off. Nearly all of the city's 325,000 or more inhabitants were forced indoors. Newspapers were unable to publish for lack of current to run the heavy presses.

Starting just before dawn, the storm descended with cyclonic fury, uprooting small trees, and blowing everything that was not fastened down before it.

BUILDINGS DAMAGED
Several unsubstantial buildings in the city proper were bowled over, but others withstood the storm's blasts, except for broken windows.

Because of severed communications, outside services were slow to report. From Cavite, thirty miles away across Manila Bay, came word, however, that control lines of the navy's giant radio station there had been torn out.

Damage was believed to have been general over a wide area.

Chief of police Columbus Plani announced, at noon, that no deaths had been reported to him. The city, however, was not yet stirring much beyond its doors.

To meet the urgent situation, Governor-General Frank Murphy declared a holiday, that every able-bodied citizen might join in the work of reconstruction.

There were no immediate reports of damage to shipping at sea.

STREETS FLOODED
Storm sewers were unable to handle the torrential downpour, and streets soon resembled small rivers. The water in places ran knee deep, flooding basements and forcing

FRENCH POLICE HEADS CHANGED

Senator Henri Lemeray Made Minister of Justice, Completing Reorganization

PARIS, Oct. 15 (CP-Havas).—Reorganization of the French Cabinet was completed today with the appointment of Senator Henri Lemeray to fill the post of Minister of Justice, left vacant by Henri Cheron, who resigned under criticism for his conduct of the Stavisky and Prince police investigations.

Lemeray, a veteran political figure from Martinique, admittedly faces a delicate task in conducting these inquiries, complicated by their political background.

POLICE HEADS CHANGED
Meanwhile Paul Marchandeau, new Minister of Interior, appointed M. Gausorgues, prefect of the Bouches-du-Rhone Department, to replace M. Jouhaud. Senator Paul Magny was named to replace Paul Berthoin as head of the Surete Nationale, French secret police.

Jouhaud and Berthoin were dismissed from office for failure to assure the safety of King Alexander of Yugoslavia and French Foreign Minister Louis Barthou, assassinated at Marseille last Tuesday. Albert Barnaud resigned as Minister of Interior for the same reason.

SECRET POTION MAY BE REMEDY

Scientist Finds Remarkable Cure for Infantile Paralysis Among Natives

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, Oct. 15 (CP).—A secret potion brewed from the skin of a snake, hitherto known only to the Indians of Brazil's wild jungles, may help science advance another step toward the discovery of the long-sought cure for infantile paralysis. "Remarkable" success in the treatment of the dread disease among the uncivilized natives, was observed by Dr. Otto Vogt Van Sickingen, German bacteriologist, on a trip through the jungle country in search of pitch-blende deposits. Infantile paralysis is prevalent in Brazil's hinterland. Dr. Van Sickingen said on arriving here, but the

TESTIFIES IN OWN DEFENCE

Hauptmann Denies Murder and Kidnapping—Trying to Prove Alibi

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP).—Bruno Richard Hauptmann dramatically denied from the witness stand today the kidnapping-killing of the Lindbergh baby as he sought to establish an alibi for the night of the abduction. "Did you murder the child Charles Augustus Lindbergh?" his attorney, James A. Fawcett, asked the German carpenter at the climax of a habeas corpus hearing. "No," Hauptmann answered quietly. Attorney-General David A. Wilentz, of New Jersey, seeking Hauptmann's extradition to his state on a murder charge, jumped up. "Didn't you build a ladder and climb up it into the baby's room, and didn't you murder the baby," he demanded. Previously he testified before Supreme Court Justice Ernest Hammer in the Bronx that:

He spent the night before the kidnapping, with his wife in their Bronx home. He drove her to her work at a bakery that morning. He looked for work in Manhattan during the day, met his wife at the bakery, had a late dinner there and drove her home, where both spent the night. Hauptmann was never flustered once by the vigorous efforts of Attorney-General Wilentz to shake his alibi.

He readily admitted to Wilentz that he lied on the day of his arrest, three weeks ago, when he told his captors that the $20 gold ransom certificate found was part of his savings.

In the next breath Hauptmann said he just as readily told authorities later in the jail that he had some of the Lindbergh ransom bills at his home.

Previously, his wife, Anna, laid the foundation for the alibi. She testified that she worked late every Tuesday night at Christian Frederickson's Bakery in the Bronx. She worked late those nights, she said, because Mrs. Frederickson was off duty.

Inasmuch as the kidnapping was on a Tuesday night, she was sure her husband called for her that night.

WORKED AT BAKERY Fawcett set the stage for the alibi. Hauptmann said his wife worked at the bakery from 1929 to June, 1932, that he was living with his wife at that time. That he frequently drove her to work and brought her home.

Then, down to the day of the kidnapping. Q.—Do you recollect whether she worked late on Tuesday nights during March, 1932?

A.—Yes. Q.—And did you take her home on Tuesday night during March, 1932?

A.—Yes. Q.—Do you recollect the first day of March, 1932? Do you remember that day?

A.—Yes, I do. Q.—And what time, if you did so, did you take your wife down to the store, on the first of March, 1932?

A.—Around 7 o'clock. Q.—And on that morning, did you work for the Reliance Property Management Company?

A.—Well, that is one thing I cannot exactly remember.

WORKED AT HIS TRADE The questioning brought out that Hauptmann, a carpenter, did some work around January to April, 1932, for the Reliance Company, and cheques to substantiate the statement were offered into evidence.

Hauptmann also stated that he worked for the Majestic Hotel. The defendant further stated he thought, although he was not certain, that he worked at the Majestic Hotel on March 1, 1932.

He was informed by the court that Hannay was charged with receiving, and that the key had no bearing on the case. J. E. NURSE PRAISED FOR HEROISM

Worked for Four Hours Amid Debris of Wreck Assisting Doctor

NORTH BATTLEFORD, Sask., Oct. 15 (CP).—The story of a nurse's heroism, in a night-long vigil among the dead and dying, gleamed like a star through the shocking details unfolded in coronor's court today, as the inquest proceeded into the deaths of the Borden train wreck victims.

At the conclusion of the hearing, and after a brief deliberation, the jury found that Henry Epp, of the Morse district, and Stanley Gumiak, of Polish origin, came to their deaths as a result of injuries received when they were unlawfully riding a Canadian National Railway freight train that was wrecked near Henly siding, four miles east of Borden, on October 6.

NO ONE TO BLAME The jury exonerated all concerned from blame in a rider in which they declared their belief that everything humanly possible was done to alleviate the suffering of victims.

Mrs. E. V. Nutting, summoned by Dr. H. H. Hicks, Borden, when first word of the derailment came, testified today, "I followed the doctor's orders," she replied quietly when she was questioned by the court.

Other witnesses told of Mrs. Nutting's heroism, of her precarious position on the top of the sloping debris that once was a box car. There, for four hours, amid the darkness, din and confusion incidental to the derailment of nineteen grain-filled cars, she administered from time to time the anaesthetic that brought to Henry Epp forgetfulness of the terrible injuries from which the seven-year-old boy subsequently died.

Professor Farr Addresses Club

Professor E. S. Farr gave a most interesting and enlightening talk on the British North American Act and its effect on Canadian legislation at the supper meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club last evening, at the Y.W.C.A. There was an unusually large attendance and the speaker's address was a most delightful solo were sung by Mrs. P. Hawes, "Still as the Night" and "The Banjo Song," the soloist's mother, Mrs. Downard, playing the accompaniment.

A presentation of a silver and glass dish was made by Miss Mabel Cameron, provincial vice-president, on behalf of the club, to Mrs. D. W. Morry, formerly Miss Anna Mason, who was married recently.

Miss Stewart addressed the club on the subject of starting physical training classes in town, and asked any members interested to communicate with the secretary, Miss Richardson. Mrs. Nuttall, of Molly's Cake Shop, a new member, was welcomed.

The speaker of the evening, Professor Farr, was warmly thanked for his address by Miss Mabel Cameron.

Zulus Like Red Coat and Busby

MONTREAL, Oct. 15 (CP).—Although Zulus just now are keen for radio sets and bicycles, they never lose their cravings for old uniforms of the pre-war type. J. G. McGregor, Durban, S.A., businessman, said here today, "They love a red coat," he smiled, "and a busby is worth almost anything you care to ask for it."

SINKS TEE SHOT Miss Hazel Irvine, of the Macaulay Point Golf Club, joined golfdom's select circle, Sunday afternoon, when she sank her tee shot at the 148-yard ninth hole at the Esquimalt course. Miss Irvine was playing with Mrs. C. Denham in the Dunlop Cup competition at the time.

JUDGES DIFFER ON PROCEDURE

Counsel Pleads for Permission to Present Case His Own Way

VANCOUVER, Oct. 15 (CP).—"I am not allowed to present this in my own way and the appeal goes against me, I shall blame myself for the rest of my life," Stuart Henderson, veteran Victoria criminal lawyer, told the Court of Appeal today.

Mr. Henderson is senior defence counsel for three Indian brothers, Richardson, Eneas and Alex George, convicted of slaying Dominion Constable F. H. Gisborne near Canford Reserve, Merritt, May 23, and sentenced to hang October 26.

Gisborne and Provincial Constable Percy Carr were slain and their bodies thrown into the Nicola River when they went to the reserve to arrest Eneas for allegedly stabbing his wife.

FIGHTING FOR LIVES "This is not an ordinary case," declared Mr. Henderson. "I am fighting for the lives of these men."

Mr. Henderson made his statements after Chief Justice J. A. Macdonald and Mr. Justice M. A. Macdonald intimated that they were not prepared with the need for any discussion of a sixty-page report of the trial judge, Mr. Justice Denis Murphy.

Mr. Justice Archer Martin said he was prepared to hear whatever defence counsel considered was essential to his case.

The report, the Chief Justice said, held that Eneas had been legally arrested prior to the slaying. The trial judge also was of the opinion that the three accused had been properly convicted of murder, the Chief Justice added.

Defence counsel was permitted to draw attention to passages in the report which, he claimed, were not supported by the evidence, after Mr. Justice A. E. McPhillips contended the document was a confidential report to the Court of Appeal and therefore was not open for discussion by counsel.

A PUBLIC DOCUMENT Mr. Justice Martin disagreed with the view taken by Mr. Justice McPhillips, stating that the report was a public document and formed part of the material on the hearing of the appeal.

"I am sure, if we refused Mr. Henderson permission, the Minister of Justice would order a new trial," Mr. Justice Martin observed.

Mr. Henderson contended that it was clear, after reading passages of the judge's charge to the jury, that the jury had found the accused guilty of murder of a constable, as distinguished from the murder of an individual who was not a police officer. The jury had decided that the arrest of Eneas was legal, counsel argued, because if they did not they would have had to acquit Alex George, who did not strike a blow during the fight.

Mr. Henderson explained that although Gisborne was a special Royal Canadian Mounted Police officer, he did not carry a regulation police revolver but used an automatic pistol.

A FARM INSTRUCTOR Mr. Justice McPhillips interjected that Gisborne was a farm instructor, but came as a policeman on this occasion.

"He acted as a policeman right along," said Mr. Justice W. G. McQuarrie.

"Why was he a farm instructor and a policeman?" asked Mr. Justice McPhillips.

"That was the way he was appointed," returned Mr. Justice McQuarrie.

"A poor kind of appointment," declared Mr. Justice McPhillips.

"Criticism of the Dominion department," retorted Mr. Justice McQuarrie.

Mr. Henderson said he would not contend that the Indians did not know that Gisborne was a police officer.

"Was that sufficient proof he was a police officer," asked the Chief Justice.

QUESTION NOT MATERIAL Mr. Henderson stated he did not think the question was material to the case, although he would not admit Gisborne was a police officer.

Mr. Henderson is expected to finish the case for the defence tomorrow, with Attorney-General Gordon Sloan and J. R. Nicholson opening the Crown's case on Wednesday.

M. RAYMOND POINCARÉ

It was once said of M. Raymond Poincaré that he had a great brain and a will of steel. Possibly these faculties explained his long hold on political life in France, during which he was Premier and President. He it was who in 1912 assembled the Ministry of all the talents, a Government that governed. He controlled such spirits as M. Leon Bourgeois, an ex-Premier; M. Aristide Briand, an ex-Premier, and M. Alexandre Millerand, a brilliant lawyer who had identified himself with the workmen in the first great strikes in France. Not only did he control such men, but he got the best possible results from the Ministry and kept alive the spirit of patriotism and national pride which the Agadir affair had stimulated.

As Premier, M. Poincaré enhanced a reputation which had made him the leader of the Bar in France. He had a diverse and notable career in politics, at one time or another holding different portfolios and always with distinction. As an author he won his place among the "Immortals" of the French Academy. His literary career was perhaps what helped him to remain independent of the swirling currents of French politics and to be regarded as a man to whom the nation could look in times of emergency. Just as he was a Premier who governed so, in course of time, he became a President who presided. He was the safe man in that position though at the Elysee he refused to be a mere figurehead. In other words, he exercised the presidential power to the full and in that position, as well as in all his roles, he was a personality.

To few politicians who have attained such success has it been given to be so manifold in their capabilities. M. Poincaré was advocate, writer, statesman and patriot, a man of mettle and brains. He was a man of amazing catholicity, as has been disclosed in his public addresses. What subject he touched he adorned and showed that there was time, even in the most strenuous life, to keep on learning. He could speak with equal authority on such subjects as the Dumas, father and son, and the dead of '70; on the duty of women and on true politics. His versatility was at once the admiration and the despair of his contemporaries. In his passing, one of France's greatest sons of modern times is gone, and the whole nation, as well as the world, will mourn the loss of such a ripe intellect.

CHURCH CRISIS IN GERMANY

Tension in the relations between Dr. Müller, newly-installed Primate of the German Evangelical, or State Church, and those who protest against what they claim is his dictatorial and non-evangelical leadership, is rapidly moving to a crisis. Saturday's dispatches describe a demonstration in Munich which the dissenters staged as a protest against the imprisonment of Bishop Weiser of Bavaria and Bishop Wurm of Württemberg, who would not acknowledge the right of Dr. Müller to depose them. Outwardly and technically united, the Reich Church is really split with rebellion. Further outbreaks may well take place similar to that in Munich, in which the protesting crowd is reported to have "spat on the ground, shouted derisively at the Nazi church administration, the Government and even at Chancellor Hitler."

The opposition is carrying on a determined fight for liberty and what it is contending for is the truly evangelical character of the German Church. Following a large enrollment in the Pastors' Emergency League last winter, the Barmen Confessional Synod was formed in May, which claimed to carry forward the work of the Reformation. On the very day of Bishop Müller's installation as Primate the opposition clergy issued a manifesto indicting him, his church government, and the "German Christian" movement. They charge betrayal of the Gospel of the Reformation in setting up a Nordic Christian religion in its place, and because of this separating themselves from the Christian community and renouncing all claims on the Christian churches. In a word, Dr. Müller and the "German Christians" are the heretics of the Evangelical Church.

The situation is a complex one. Opposition in Protestant circles does not arise from objection to a unified state church, a volkskirche, a church of the people, as Dr. Garvie has pointed out in The Christian World, of London. German Christians have been habituated to the idea of a close union of church and state; there is no body of Free Church conviction such as is found in England and more pronouncedly in Canada; nor do they fall in loyalty to President Hitler and a united and progressive Germany. Recent Canadian visitors to Germany, speaking in this city, have testified to the intense devotion of the German people to their leader. The opposition objects to the Aryan propaganda, its anti-Semitism and depreciation of the Old Testament. Such doctrine is repugnant to the dissenters as being contrary to Bible and Reformation teaching. However, Dr. Müller is in the saddle now with the avowed backing of President Hitler. A unified Church, supporting a unified nation, is the policy. All objectors are traitors. Here is material for a tragedy.

Restiveness among German Catholics has not been allayed by recent statements of the Reich Church leaders. Dr. August Jaeger, Nazi commissioner for Protestant churches in Prussia, states that the present "cleansing" process is to prepare a way for a national church in which the confessional differences between Protestants and Catholics will disappear. Reichsbishop Müller disclaims the report that he himself had made a similar statement. Meantime the three German Catholic bishops are in consultation with Nazi representatives regarding the concordat and conflict arising out of it. The Government is anxious to ally Catholic irritation in view of the fact that the future of the Saar, where Catholics are in the large majority, lies in their ballots.

ABANDONING CODE SYSTEM

It is not easy to determine from dispatches what reforms are taking place in the administration of the National Recovery Act in the United States. What is certain, however, is that the "iridescent dreams," as Mr. Donald R. Richberg calls the fantasies of General Hugh Johnston, the late administrator, will not play a part in that administration in the future. The fact is that the code system has been found unworkable, and just as this discovery is made Provincial Governments in this country are talking of putting it into effect, with Premier Hepburn of Ontario assuming leadership in this particular. The code system never worked with smaller individual industries and businesses, whatever its success with the larger ones.

Mr. Richberg now declares in favor of the old competitive system. The manner in which it will be reverted to can only be by the way of less governmental interference. The impression prevails that no workable scheme for the future has yet been devised. Washington, for the moment, is perplexed. Mr. Roosevelt no doubt will do something. His pre-election promise was to the effect that if "something" he tried did not work he would try "something" else. If the new "something" is to work there will have to be some radical changes in the existing policies. This is the conception of Mr. Richberg, who is probably speaking after consultation with the President. The code idea originated at the White House. It is in that direction that the people of the United States will turn to find a solution of the trouble it has precipitated. That it is being abandoned in the United States will no doubt eliminate the idea as one to be translated into practical politics in this country.

POPULAR FIGURE GONE

Everyone in this community who plays golf, and many others besides, will wish peace to the ashes of Alex. Marling, the popular professional of the Colwood Golf Club, who died yesterday. There was no better liked professional in the city, a teacher of the game of high repute and endowed with a genial personality which was undoubtedly an asset to the Colwood Club. No one who had ever met Alex. Marling could have failed to like him. He made an instantaneous impression by the courtesy of his manner and the good temper which he always displayed. A war injury affected his golf, but never his spirits. As a teacher of the game he trained many players in the community who retain admiration for his ability as an instructor and respect for his likability as a man. The Colwood Club can ill spare him, and golfers will feel that a friend, who always took the keenest interest in the game of everyone with whom he came into contact, is missing. To his widow, son and daughter the keenest sympathy will be extended in their grievous loss.

For ages you were rock, far below light.

Crushed, without shape, earth's unregarded bone.

Then Man in all the marvel of his might

Quarried you out and buried you from the stone.

Then, being pured to essence, you were naught

But weight and hardness, body without nerve;

Then Man in all the marvel of his thought

Smithied you into form of leap and curve;

And took you, so, and bent you to his vast,

Intense great world of passionate design.

Curse after changing curving, braided and massed

To stand all tumult that can tumble brine,

And left you, this, a rampart of a ship.

Long as a street and lofty as a tower,

Ready to glide in thunder from the slip

And shear the sea with majesty of power.

I long to see you leaping to the urge

Of the great engines, rolling as you go,

Parting the seas in surges in a surge.

Shredding a trackway like a mile of snow

With all the water streaming from your hull

And all gear twanging shrilly as you race,

And effortless above your stern a gull

Leaping upon the blast and keeping pace.

May shipwreck and collision, fog and fire,

Rock, shoal and other evils of the sea,

Be kept from you, and may the heart's desire

Of those who speed your launching come to be.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

Of all sciences, there is none where as pretences are more deceitful than in politics.—Hume.

Men are discussing plans and codes, and in some countries are experimenting with them. Nature also has her plans and codes, and it is said to be a dangerous thing to tamper with them. The economic code of Nature was tampered with when the mongoose was imported into some of the islands of the East Indies for the purpose of killing snakes. The economic code of Nature was tampered with when the British rabbit was imported into Australia for the purpose of providing sport for the sport-loving people of that big island. In the East Indies the mongoose became a pest, and in Australia the rabbit is a pest.

We have not read of how the East Indians treated the pest of the mongoose, but we have learned through the newspapers that the rabbit pest is still a problem in Australia and that the evil has been somewhat abated by killing the rabbits by the million and selling their flesh and their skins in many markets of the world. We also have read in the papers (very useful and interesting institutions notwithstanding all that has been said about their shortcomings and their sins) that some lover of the products of Nature imported British starlings into Ontario, and that they have become a nuisance.

The starling was never, so far as we can remember, considered a nuisance in Britain, probably because there were balances in Nature which kept it in its place. It may be that the starlings which have become a nuisance in Ontario are not the British starlings, but birds of Japanese extraction, which are said to have established colonies in the neighborhood of Vancouver and are playing havoc with the native birds and some of the products of the farms. At any rate, there are colonies of starlings in Ontario, the farmers have been aroused because of the alleged destructiveness of the invaders, and there is a price on the head of every starling. Between politics and starlings the people of Ontario are quite in a state of mental hysteria.

If you ever have lived in Ontario, it is not necessary to tell you that the people of that wonderfully prolific province used to be devoted to two abstract but very important things—religion and politics. As far as we can deduce from reading the discussions and arguments in the Ontario newspapers, religious enthusiasm has somewhat waned; but at the present time political enthusiasm has waxed, and is only tempered by the perplexing agricultural problem of what shall be done to exterminate the destructive starling. When the people are not discussing what Premier Hepburn has done and has promised to do, what Attorney-General Roebuck has been up to or will be up to next, they are arguing about the problem of the pert and impudent starling.

The Premier and his Attorney-General have thrown pestiferous Tories by the thousand out of the "Union and Patriot," but H. Glynn Ward, has been brought in by their resourful starlings out of provincial bounds is a very different and more difficult "proposition." W do not suppose that even Rev. Almee Semple (late McPherson) could start a revival in her native province and fan religion into a flame. But the balance of Nature has been maintained by two inspired political evangelists, Hepburn and Roebuck. Probably never since the memorable political days of Sir John Macdonald and Sir Oliver Mout have the people of Ontario been enjoying themselves so completely as they are at the present time. Hepburn is slaying the Tories hip and thy and Roebuck is burying the corpses.

Hon. E. C. Drury, leader of the most incapable government and head of the most corrupt cabinet any British country ever had, has been given an important and remunerative position; Colonel Drew, an office-holder of unquestioned probity, has been fired because he would not appoint a man who had been convicted in the courts to a position of trust and confidence. Attorney-General Roebuck claimed that he had discharged Col. Drew because of inefficiency in the performance of his duties. The Colonel in his turn has made the following charges against Roebuck:

"1. That he, or someone under his instructions, removed letters and memoranda from my files improperly."

"2. That he would not give me the opportunity of discussing regulations that are urgently necessary in the interests of the investing public of the province of Ontario in spite of frequent requests."

"3. That, although I sought an interview with him through the regular channels, I was unable to obtain one on the very day that he interviewed a man whom he knew to have twelve criminal convictions, and that he improperly sought to give my hand in granting this man permission to sell securities."

"4. That I received no acknowledgment of any kind to my letters of September 17 and September 18, which were written with the utmost courtesy and called for some answer in view of the responsibility to the public which Mr. Roebuck knew I still must accept.

"5. That when I was finally forced to publish my letter to you to obtain some action, you stated publicly, for the first time, that it had been decided some time ago that I was to be offered as an economy measure, while the Attorney-General stated that I was to be dismissed for inefficiency, thus clearly demonstrating that the Attorney-General was both malicious and dishonest in his explanation of the circumstances."

MOTOR TRAFFIC

Sir,—Our chief of police and staff deserve the thanks of the citizens, both who walk and drive, for the instruction given during the last week.

While the subject is fresh in our minds, it may not be out of place to make a few suggestions to those in control. Have the "stop signs," intended to stop traffic entering arterial highways, etc., on the main or seven feet above the ground, striped with paint, black and white, with round disc about eighteen inches in diameter on top, with "stop" plainly painted thereon, as is done in other cities. The present posts, about four feet long, are too short and inconspicuous to be seen by drivers of motor cars, telephone poles, etc. For strangers and tourists accustomed to reasonable signs, they are useless; as has been proven by several serious accidents.

I would further suggest that when parking lanes for parking cars, the yellow stripes be continued up the face of the curb to the level of the walk. This would bring the limit of the parking space prominently before the driver, and would tend to keep the cars parked at the same angle. This would be practically nothing in paint and labor, and would not wear off. I may add that this is done in cities in California and the effect is most striking and satisfactory.

Our "no U turn" signs tucked carefully away and out of sight at our premises, are certainly a joke, and I doubt if 5 per cent of the motor drivers in the city know of their existence. Proper and prominent signs should be displayed where considered necessary by the authorities. With the ever-increasing traffic this matter should be attended to at once.

Regarding bicycles, the riders of bicycles in Victoria and suburbs certainly require some regulation. At present they wobble all over the roadway, sometimes three abreast, and they appear to think that the right of way is theirs. The law of keeping bicycles to the right of roads, carrying lights in front and behind, riding in traffic in single file, etc., if not now in effect, should be revised and made law and the law enforced.

The winter evenings are closing in and I know I am voicing the opinion of all motor drivers when I state that it is greatly to their credit that more wobblers on bicycles without lights are not run over.

As I said before, the efforts of the police to bring the seriousness of following the rules laid down for the guidance of drivers and pedestrians cannot be overestimated, and it is up to the citizens to do all in their power to help them in their laudable efforts to save lives.

E. B. ANDROS

Brentwood, B.C., October 14, 1934.

A LIQUOR CACHE

Sir,—An article appearing in the issue of your paper, dated September 23, 1934, under the heading of "Union and Patriot," by H. Glynn Ward, has been brought to my attention.

Reference is made in paragraph 5 to a Federal customs boat, with twenty-two R.C.M.P. aboard, riding the stern of a run-runner with bullets, the run-runner referred to presumably is the Kitanayaka.

This is a misstatement of facts, as at no time has such an incident occurred on the Pacific Coast in which members of this force were concerned.

The Kitanayaka is of Canadian registry and apparently had been used in making contact with liquor vessels engaged in smuggling into the United States. Since the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, in December last, the Kitanayaka has been lying idle at Coal Harbor.

The date of the incident referred to is given as "last summer." Presumably the patrol vessel referred to is the Malaspina, and reports indicate that the facts are as follows:

"On October 23, 1933, the master of the Dominion Fisheries Patrol boat Malaspina was patrolling the waters adjacent to South Pender Island, B.C., when he was signaled by a shore-side person (a hunter) to pull in, and the master obeyed the request, and when he had pulled in, he found that he had found a liquor cache.

The liquor cache was picked up and put aboard the Malaspina by the crew. In the meantime the British Columbia Provincial Police were notified. On their arrival with their motor launch they took charge of the liquor cache, and turned same over to the custody of the British Columbia Liquor Control Board, at Victoria, B.C.

This liquor was destined for the United States trade, but due to the Kitanayaka experiencing engine trouble, she was unable to make contact with the United States speedboat, so cached her goods, and later proceeded to Bidwell Harbor for repairs.

At this latter point the members of the British Columbia Provincial Motor Launch No. 6 boarded and searched her. A revolver was found in the cabin. The master was arrested and charged with possession of an offensive weapon, capable of being concealed. The charge was proceeded with at the police court, Victoria, was dismissed.

It will be noted that the Federal vessel concerned was operated by the Dominion Fisheries Department, and this seems to be the incident referred to in the article. The facts were misstated and this creates an entirely erroneous interpretation of the operations of this force.

J. H. MACBRIEN,

Commissioner, Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Ottawa, October 10, 1934.

STOP AND GO SIGNALS

Sir,—Regarding the attempted regulation of traffic at the corner of Yates and Douglas Street it might be interesting to know the rules concerning right and left turns (or are they permitted at all)?

On Saturday morning I was about to turn the corner (to the right) from Douglas to Yates Street with a bicycle, not riding, only pushing it, and was stopped by one of our energetic officers until the signal was changed. In all other towns I have visited where signals are used, both in Canada and the States, right hand turns are allowed regardless of signals and pedestrians have to look out for themselves.

If this is not allowed, how on earth is a driver to make a turn at all, as obviously he has to proceed in two different directions to get around any corner with a left hand turn? I suggest that a course of lectures be arranged for all drivers of cars, bicycles, go-carts and everything with wheels (attendance at same to be compulsory), and said drivers may digest the intricacies of Victoria's fearful and wonderful traffic regulations.

Let us hope that Douglas and Yates Street corner which has hitherto been a particularly safe corner free from accidents may not be made a danger spot by "stop and go."

WILLIAM J. MUNROE,

248 Superior Street, Victoria, B.C., October 15, 1934.

RECREATION ROOMS

Sir,—Among the number of deserving charitable organizations which are at the present time asking for assistance, may I have the privilege of your columns to say an earnest word in favor of what is known to the citizens of Victoria as the Citizens' Recreation Rooms.

It has been my lot to have had to take advantage of the rooms, and it is surely a haven of rest to many who have no place to go but the streets, and to enjoy a rest, also some relaxation in the nature of reading, writing, a game of cards, etc. In the almost hopeless endeavor to find employment.

Only those who are in these hard times rightly up against it, the whole heartedly appreciate the great benefit and help the rooms are, and they are most justly entitled to all the assistance that is possible from those who are placed in more fortunate circumstances than the habitue of the rooms.

The rooms are at all times clean, quiet and most courteously and efficiently conducted.

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY

(From The Daily British Colonist of October 15, 1884.)

Incendiary fire—Early this morning, McOrr, proprietor of the Cores Hotel, was awakened by the popping of bottles, and found the house full of suffocating smoke. Rushing out he discovered that there was a fire in the cellar which he managed to extinguish with some buckets of water. An investigation revealed the fact that the cellar door had been forced, some raw saturated with a demijohn of whisky, and set on fire. There will be a loss of approximately $100 of wine and liquor. If the fire had been minutes more headway, no doubt the entire building would have been razed to the ground. No clue has as yet been obtained of the perpetrator of the disaster.

Type of Social Welfare Work Instanced by Case

The following article, contributed by a social welfare worker in the interests of the Friendly Help Welfare Association's campaign for funds, gives an insight into the work that is being done in Victoria.

"Mr. B. comes to the office to get his teeth fixed. Although this is something we cannot do for him, owing to the enormous demand for dental work, we advise a certain despair in his face and invite him to sit down, hoping to help him find a way out of the difficulty. In the course of conversation, we learn that Mr. B. has a job, but he suddenly remarks that his wife has left him and his small earnings are being spent on a housekeeper. He feels the children are not getting a square deal, as he cannot afford to pay enough to get a really good woman, and asks if we can help him locate his wife. After all, if this difficulty is settled, he says, he can probably look after his teeth himself.

"There is no hard and fast rule of treatment in social case work. In no two out of a hundred or more apparently similar cases will an experienced case worker adopt the same line of treatment. Why is this? Because the worker is dealing with human individuals rather than with a particular problem. She will make it her business to know them intimately, their heredity, their environment and their attitude to the people they encounter, and to the routine of their daily life.

EMOTIONAL BASIS

"In the above case, we find a man whose every act is based upon emotion. He has no use for law, and is annoyed with the social worker because she tells him there is no law to punish a deserting wife. When we learn the story of his marriage to a much younger woman, we find an entire absence of foresight. A momentary pity was the main reason for his marrying Mrs. B., and yet Mr. B. is resentful that she has not proved the ideal wife. His choice of housekeepers has been most unwise, and we find the children sick and badly cared for. When finally we locate Mrs. B., she turns out to be dominated by an older sister, who encouraged her to leave home and whose morals are questionable. As we get to know Mrs. B. better, we find that although apparently fond of the children, she is entirely unresponsive. She refuses to get back to Mr. B., but cannot give a reason.

"What various courses are open to the social worker? Should she have told Mr. B. in the first place, that he must look after his own teeth and have left it at that? Should she offer to help Mr. B. by paying a better housekeeper, or is he the kind of person who cannot get on with a housekeeper? Should she try to bring about a reconciliation? Or should she persuade Mr. B. to let Mrs. B. have the children? Here again law enters the discussion, in the form of the Equal Guardianship Act. Or would it be better to take the children out of the home entirely, either temporarily or permanently? In the meantime the children must be given more adequate care and must receive medical attention.

PERSONALITY BUILDING

"Whichever of the above courses the social worker adopts, or even if she adopts none of them, her real job is so to develop and build up

CONSUL APPLIES FOR EXTRADITION

Lucius Parmelee Wanted in Toronto to Answer Charges of Forgery

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15 (AP).—Application for extradition to Toronto, of Lucius A. Parmelee, of Sausalito, to answer forgery charges, was made here today by Acting British Consul-General Cyril H. Cane. The application was made to United States Commissioner Ernest E. Williams.

Parmelee, who was captured in Sausalito, last week, when a bank teller's wife threw her arms about his neck and hung on until police came, is charged with having forged a cheque for $3,800 on the Canadian Bank of Commerce, using the name "Rev. J. Kerr, Winnipeg." The bank teller's wife, Mrs. C. W. Wilson, made the capture when her husband recognized the man on the street. Wilson, who lost a leg in the World War, helped hold the man until police arrived. Officers said Parmelee admitted having obtained $50,000 through forgeries in the past fourteen years.

FELLOWSHIP IS STUDYING BOOK

Dickens Group Here Not Certain of Stephen Leacock's Latest Effort

Members of Victoria Dickens Fellowship are not quite certain whether they like, or dislike, Stephen Leacock's recent book on Charles Dickens, his life and work, and will reserve any criticism they may have to make until some later time.

The fellowship had a meeting, last night, in the Campbell Building, and the book was under discussion, but, like all true followers of Dickens, the members were inclined to be charitable and to leave final approval, or disapproval, until all members had an opportunity of studying the passages that have been objected to by some other Dickens groups in Canada and in the Old Country. They were, however, ready to admit the book contained some "good points," but were seemingly at a loss to understand "why" Stephen Leacock wrote it.

NOTES AND COMMENT

During the meeting, Major R. A. Donald, one of Victoria's foremost students of Dickens, gave an interesting reading, "Box Looks Things Over," which were really notes and comment concerning Dickens' "The Uncommercial Traveller." Quotations from the well-known book showed the immense power, of expressing the ordinary things of life, possessed by Dickens, and the worthwhile results in the matter of reform which followed these observations.

The fellowship is endeavoring to have a Dickensian evening broadcast for the benefit of people of Victoria and vicinity and has been in communication with the Home Oil Distributors. The negotiations are not complete, but the fellowship has received encouraging information from Frank Anders, head of the Home Gas Band, and it is possible an evening of Dickens will be arranged for the Christmas season.

ARRANGE FOR DINNER

Arrangements, it was announced last night, are nearly complete for the annual dinner, which will be held this year in Speedie's Cafe, which, it is estimated, fifty will be present. If arrangements can be made, members of the fellowship will appear in costume to represent Dickens' characters.

To further emphasize the spirit of Dickens at Christmas-tide, donations for the Dickens Fellowship hamper will be handed in at the annual dinner. This hamper will be donated to some charitable organization to be distributed to some needy family in Victoria.

The meeting was well attended and the fellowship is looking forward to a most successful winter season. W. L. Llewellyn was in the chair and after the business part of the meeting, tea was served by Mrs. Llewellyn and her two daughters.

Vermilyea, who denies the accusation, declaring he has not been out of California for several months, today formally waived further extradition proceedings. United States Commissioner David B. Head is expected to sign an order in the morning turning the suspect over to Inspector H. K. Gardner, of the Ontario Provincial Police.

Council Has Important Part in World Affairs

OTTAWA, Oct. 15 (CP).—In the solution of two great problems—the preservation of world peace, and employment—the work of the National Council of Women is highly valuable. Thus stated the Governor-General in the course of an address at the opening of the council's forty-first annual meeting here today.

By helping to "educate public opinion on sane lines," the council can, and does, assist materially in the solution of these major problems.

The importance of motion pictures and magazine literature as formative influences, "particularly on the minds of the younger generation," was emphasized by His Excellency. "I am convinced that it is of paramount importance in the world today, and that every effort should be made to deal with it sanely."

For the first time in a quarter of a century, women representing local organizations in every province of Canada gathered here for the National Council meeting.

Thanks to Mayor P. J. Nolan for his welcome to Ottawa, women were escorted by Mrs. L. G. Ferguson, of Westville, N.S., provincial president for Nova Scotia, and seconded by Mrs. A. C. Bagley, of Vancouver, British Columbia provincial president. A ten-month-old infant, the Local Council of Kamloops, B.C., was welcomed on motion of Mrs. Bagley.

Judge Said to Have Slighted French-Canadians in Court Statement

CORNWALL, Ont., Oct. 15 (CP).—Unless an apology is forthcoming from Mr. Justice McKinnon of the Supreme Court of Ontario for disparaging remarks concerning French-Canadians he is alleged to have made from the bench, the matter will be carried to the floor of Parliament, leading French-Canadians declared today.

The French-speaking citizens of this town and along the St. Lawrence River are indignant and have forwarded a protest to Prime Minister R. B. Bennett and Minister of Justice Hugh Guthrie. The protest took the form of a resolution passed unanimously at a special meeting of the St. Jean Baptiste Society.

BECAME IMPATIENT

During a trial, last week, the judge is said to have become impatient at the inability of some witnesses to speak English, and to have declared if he had his way no one who could not speak English would be given a vote. He is also said to have intimated to one witness that a night in jail might improve his knowledge of English.

Joseph E. Chevrier, businessman and former Mayor of Cornwall, is one of the leaders of the attack on the judge's stand.

PUBLIC AID IN POLL REGISTRY

Fine Start Made With Enumeration of Electors in Victoria Federal Riding

Registration for the Federal voters' list opened yesterday in Victoria, and proceeded smartly according to officials in charge of the registration, under James Wilson, registrar of voters. Enumerators, in pairs, called at the first homes of their list in each of the 105 polling divisions. Enrollment progressed with much good-natured co-operation on the part of the public.

Victoria women were pleased with the elimination of the disliked definition "housewife," and substitution under Federal rules of the term "married woman," as the occupation of householders. Originals of the application forms left with the enumerator also gave substantial proof of adequate registration.

For the most part the public offered the required information freely, and thousands of names went down on the new lists as the result of the first day's work. There were few untoward incidents. If high-strung watchdogs who object to strangers, are excepted.

For the balance of this week, enumeration will continue in a house-to-house call throughout all sections of the area.

Musical Season Opened With Brilliant Concert

Bernice Clair, Coloratura Soprano, and Esther Lundell, Pianist, Heard by Capacity Audience at Empress Hotel Last Night

Victoria's 1934-1935 musical season opened on a brilliant note last evening at the Empress Hotel, when the internationally-known coloratura soprano, Bernice Clair, assisted by Esther Lundell, a gifted pianist, were introduced in recital by the Shipman Series, in conjunction with the Musical Arts Society. The hall was crowded, and the enthusiastic mood of the audience was not only complimentary to the artists, but augured well for the popularity of first-class musical events that are promised for later in the year.

Familiar to every radio fan and movie-theatre patron, Bernice Clair is a scintillating little person whose meter, as the last group of numbers on her programme showed, is unquestionably musical comedy. A high coloratura voice, clear as crystal, bright and light as a thread of spun glass, yet beautifully flexible, nearly faultless in its intonation, and manipulated with such ease that it sometimes seemed almost too effortless. When to this are added personal attractiveness and a very pleasing style, instantaneous success with her audience is assured.

THE PROGRAMME
Her programme contained a much greater diversity of material than one would expect to hear from a voice of this type, as she ranged through groups of old English songs to opera and classical and modern ballads, finishing with a succession of popular melodies from "The Chocolate Soldier" and "Milk and Honey."

Essentially a light coloratura, the charm of her singing lies in its brightness rather than its emotional depth, but the loveliness of her enunciation gave the listener the full value of every word, upon which they could play their own imagination.

In her first group were, Dr. Arne's "Lass With the Delicate Air," and Benedict's rhapsodic, "The Wren," to some of which she added little untraditional flourishes that were quite lovely from such a voice.

rose around China's supply of the white metal.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull, in a note to the National Government, said the policy under consideration was to buy silver in world markets was laid down by Congress and cannot be changed. In its broad objective, by the executive.

SHARP ADVANCE
NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP).—The forward march of silver prices continued today when foreign silver for domestic industrial use was quoted here at 55 1/4 cents an ounce, up 1 1/2 cents. This was another new high since 1929.

The advance, based on the rise of a half-penny in the London market, bringing the price to 24 7/8 pence there, followed announcement of imposition of a 10 per cent flexible tax on export of all silver from China.

The Chinese tax action was calculated by officials there to cause depreciation of their currency in foreign exchange, the value of which depends on the world price of its fixed silver content, and to protect their silver reserves.

The drop in the quotation of the Shanghai dollar from Saturday to Monday, however, was smaller than anticipated, it being felt here that the rise in the world silver price offset a portion of the looked for decrease.

HEAVY BUYING
Such price changes raised the question in financial circles of where the United States Government would turn in its silver purchase programme designed to create a 25-75 silver-gold ratio in metallic reserves.

Meanwhile, the Government continues to buy silver to the extent of domestic output at 64 1/2 cents an ounce, a total which reached more than 17,000,000 ounces in the first eight months of this year, as the difference between the world price and the domestic price for newly-mined metal decreases.

ACTION BY CHINA
SHANGHAI, Oct. 15 (AP).—China gave its answer today to the United States silver policy—a 10 per cent tax on all exports of the metal.

The Nationalist Government, after weeks of deliberation on the situation, put the tax into effect today, deeming unsatisfactory the reply of the United States to negotiations for "co-operation."

The drain of silver from China, due to increased prices, has lowered Chinese purchasing power and alarmed Government and financial circles. China's currency is based on silver.

Provisions of the export tax are flexible and the Government is expected to change it whenever necessary to hold exports within limits required by balance of payments.

Some $20,000,000 of silver in Chinese money scheduled for departure this week for London and America will be subject to the tax, expected to halt a major share of future shipments.

A statement by the Nationalist Government said the step was taken "in view of the undue rise in silver, out of relation to the level of general commodity prices," and "in order to safeguard China's economic interests and protect its currency."

ANSWER BY U.S.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 (AP).—The United States, promising consideration to the Chinese Government, nevertheless stood firmly by its silver policy today as a tax wall

Value of Insurance Emphasized in Talk To Women's Council

More Chances of Being a Widow Than a Widower, Says J. E. Runions, in Address on Estate—Heavy Programme Considered

AMONG married people, 69 per cent of the deaths are husbands, and only 31 per cent are wives. In other words, every wife has two chances to one of being a widow, J. E. Runions told the Local Council of Women in the highly informative talk on "Estate, Its Conservation and Distribution," that he gave yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Runions considered the question of estate and property under the triple headings of acquiring, conserving and distributing, and urged the importance of all three toward the end of securing security in the years following one's capacity to work. Life insurance had been shown by statistics to be the most secure form of estate under the modern tests of security of income, marketability, value of collateral, acceptable denunciation, potential appreciation, etc. After life insurance in importance came the savings bank, and other forms of security were bonds, stock mortgages, and real estate.

At the speaker's request, the president, Mrs. C. C. Spofford, read an interesting excerpt from Dorothy Dix in which she gave the above-quoted figures of the relative mortality of husbands and wives.

ILLUSIVE WEALTH
The illusive nature of wealth was shown in figures compiled by a Harvard University investigation to determine the result of speculation. This showed that 97 per cent lost money, 2 per cent broke even, and 1 per cent came out with profits. "We should try," said the speaker, "to put our money into something safe." Figures proved that the man of twenty-five had more money in the bank and more estate than at sixty years; and that eighty-five of every hundred persons were either wholly or partially dependent in old age. This condition occurred among the rich and the poor and the middle classes alike. The Friedman Home, New York, for ex-illuminated.

Weddings

CARLOW-SADLER

The marriage of Rose, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Sadler, 348 Michigan Street, and Robert Carlow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carlow, Stanley Avenue, was solemnized on Saturday, in the vestry of the Metropolitan United Church, by Rev. E. F. Church. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a stylish girlish frock of white crepe with hat to match, and Mrs. J. Bennett, groomed in water green, crepe de Chine, were the matrons of honor. They both wore corsage bouquets of carnations. Mr. John Sadler, brother of the bride, supported the groom.

Following the ceremony, members of both families assembled at the home of the bride's parents, where supper was served from a table arranged with pink and white streamers and white carnations, and was centred with a three-tier wedding cake which was iced by Mrs. J. J. Taylor. Mrs. A. Sadler wore a smart royal blue taffeta dress and Mrs. Carlow wore a becoming gown of nigger brown flat crepe, and they both carried bouquets of carnations. Mrs. J. Bennett had charge of the decorating, and assisting with the supper were Mrs. A. Sadler, Miss E. Davis and Mrs. J. Bennett.

After a honeymoon trip to Island, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carlow will make their home on Stanley Avenue. For going away, the bride chose a navy blue tailored suit with matching accessories. A pearl scarf pin was the gift to the groom from the best man, and from the matrons of honor a pendant was given to the bride.

NEGROES PLAN AVIATION CLUB

"Black Squadron" to Be Organized to Aid America in Attack

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—The formation of a negro aviators' organization was begun here under the leadership of Rev. Charles Beck, pastor of the Church of God and Christ.

The organization, according to Rev. Beck, will be known as the "Black Squadron," and will be formed to aid America in the event of this country being attacked, and to protect Abyssinia, Liberia and Haiti from foreign invasion.

PLAN AIRPORTS

The purpose of the club will be to make American negro folk air-minded. Plans are already going forward to purchase an airport at the east end of Pittsburgh.

Hubert Julian, known as the "Black Eagle," and Lewis Anderson, both negro aviators, are coming here to work as instructors to 500 local recruits who have already paid fifty cents each toward cost of their instruction, it was said.

MASSED FLIGHT

After their period of instruction is completed, the youths plan to undertake a massed flight to Haiti in planes expected to be purchased after a drive for funds. The organization, Beck said, expected to purchase the planes at $38 each, but after inquiry at the county airport, discovered that the lowest figure for the plane they had in mind would cost $4,500 each.

"A year from next Armistice Day," Beck said, "we will have a massed flight over the city and we expect 2,000 boys in Pittsburgh to learn to fly."

Julian and Anderson, the instructors, once contemplated a trans-Atlantic flight, and Julian has the title of commander-in-chief of the Abyssinian Air Force.

Customs Figures Reveal Facts to Tariff Proponents of Goods Entering Philippine Market

MANILA, Oct. 15 (UP).—Proponents of the aggressive movement under way for tariff legislation, better to protect American goods entering the Philippine market, are using Bureau of Customs figures for the first six months of 1934 to drive home their points.

They maintain present trade between the United States and the Philippines favors the latter country too much to make continuation of free trade, after independence, profitable to America, unless remedied.

FIGURES GIVEN

Statistics compiled by the bureau reveal that of the Philippines total foreign exports of $74,294,179 during the first semester, $66,021,561, or nearly 90 per cent, went to the United States.

On the other hand, but $27,856,297 worth of American goods came to the islands during the same period, leaving the islands a favorable balance of $38,165,213.

Japan, America's greatest competitor at present, profited by her trade with the Philippines during the first semester of the current fiscal year.

JAPAN PROFITED

Japanese imports only $1,981,375 of Philippine goods, at the same time exporting $6,636,329 to the Philippines, for a resulting favorable balance of $4,654,954.

The total foreign trade of the Philippine Islands for the first half-year of 1934 amounted to $118,071,115 as against $96,835,777 for the same period last year, an increase of $21,235,338.

Total imports amounted to $43,776,987 or $30,517,197 less than Philippine exports.

Pat: "He said that the sweetest memories in life are the recollections of things forgotten!"

SILVER SLIPPERS

CHAPTER VIII

Dilly stripped off her raincoat, handed it to Giles and flung her little hat to Scripps, who lighted-up and laughing, caught it. Her short, fair hair, thus revealed, framed a fresh-cheeked, smiling countenance. Her nose had little golden freckles, and in the grey eyes under the long fair lashes were twinkling lights.

She began to lay the table, deftly, having brought a cloth, and going back and forth to Scripps' cupboard for the dishes.

"There's the coffee in the thermos bottle," she enumerated as she bent over her basket, "pickles," she set a bottle on the table, "olives," another bottle, "open them, Giles, and then we're ready."

Giles drawing out a chair for her, said, "Scripps tells me the baby is better."

"Yes, I left her with William. And he is scared stiff. He has lived five years in a lighthouse and he's never been afraid of anything. But baby has him petrified. She's so helpless and little. He handles her as if she were going to break."

Dilly was pouring the coffee. "Cream for you, Scripps, and none for Giles. What a pair you are, doing everything differently, yet such friends."

Scripps flared: "Does drinking my coffee with cream make me different from Giles? We're absolutely alike in everything except that I won't accept his philosophy. He believes that everything works together for good. Which is archaic."

"Rot," said Dilly.

Dilly's eyes met Giles' and saw a warning. "Oh, well, we're not going to quarrel about it on anybody's birthday, are we? And you haven't told me how you like the sandwiches."

"Delicious," Giles said, "how do you do it, Dilly?"

"Do what?"

"Take care of a house and a baby and a garden and look after that husband of yours."

"Keeping house," Dilly told him. "In a lighthouse has its advantages—with no neighbors running in and nothing to interrupt, and William and I get up early. . . . He helped me make the sandwiches. . . . butted 'em and sliced the roast chicken. . . . He's to have the wings and legs for his dinner, and I baked a little cake for him. . . ."

"Lucky William."

Dilly was complacent. "Yes, he is. And so am I. And so's the baby. . . . she sent her smiling glance to those on her smiles. "And now, will one of you light the candles?"

Scripps did it, touching each pink tip with flame, his white hair and young face illumined by the growing brightness.

"And now," Dilly prompted, as they gazed upon that rosy effulgence, "make a wish, Giles, and if you blow all of them out at once, it will come true."

"What shall I wish?"

"It must be secret. In your heart."

"What if I have no heart?"

"Then in your soul."

"Why should I have any secrets from you and Scripps? I shan't make a wish. I'll drink a toast instead." He raised his glass, "To the silver slippers."

"What slippers?" Dilly demanded.

"Those on the shelf."

"Who are they?"

He rose and brought them over, showed her the tag, "Joan Dudley."

"Never heard of her."

"She's at the hotel. A school teacher out for a holiday."

"If she is a school teacher she has squandered a month's salary on these shoes."

"So Scripps says."

Dilly's voice was wistful. "How wonderful it must be to wear slippers like that and the gowns to go with them. Yet you say she's a school teacher."

"So she told me. But there's a rich aunt, who probably pays for luxuries. Miss Dudley motored down with her."

"I wonder if I'd dare try them on?"

Dilly's feet were small and the silver shoes fitted perfectly. "I feel like Cinderella," she said delightedly, "at the ball," she essayed a few dancing steps, humming a tune. "Come on Giles. . . ."

He danced with her, until suddenly she stopped. . . . and said with a sort of quick decision, "This ball is over. And my William doesn't dance. . . . Take back your slippers, Scripps. They're too. . . . disturbing."

Giles was aware that beneath the light words was some emotion not seen on the surface. But he said nothing, at the moment, and presently they were all laughing together as Giles blew out the guttered candles, and Dilly cut the cake.

A scheme of reforestation, such as is being carried out in the United States, is being recommended to the Dominion Government by the city of Hull, Quebec, according to a communication received at the City Hall yesterday.

The support of the Victoria City Council is being sought in the matter. The communication also asks the city to support a recommendation that legislation be changed throughout Canada for the purpose of compelling loggers to replace every tree cut with a new seedling.

LIVELY MUSICAL AT THE DOMINION

"Caravan" Stars Charles Boyer—Sparkle, Color and Gaiety Are Featured

In "Caravan," the memorable Fox Film musical spectacle which opens at the Dominion Theatre today, Erik Charell, noted Continental director, has created one of the most brilliant and original screen plays ever shown in a local playhouse. For sparkle, color and gaiety, it is unsurpassed.

Lavishly produced at the Fox studios, with Hungarian villages, castles, inns and vast gypsy caravans swiftly alternating as backgrounds, "Caravan" tells a romantic love story in a delightfully new vein. The setting is idyllic—the grape country of Tokay during the wine harvest—and a quartette of leading players as vivid as the setting carries forward the story to a spectacular finish.

Charles Boyer, favorite stage and screen star of the Continent, heads the cast as a dashing gypsy musician. The glamorous Loretta Young, appears as a gay young countess. Jean Parker and Phillips Holmes complete the stellar quartette. All four of them are superbly cast. Though "Caravan" does not classify as the conventional screen musical revue in any sense, music plays an important part in the smooth and effortless flow of its story.

COLUMBIA During the production of "Mandalay," the First National picture which is now at the Columbia Theatre, Lyle Talbot entertained five British naval officers who had just completed a five month cruise across the Pacific in a forty-five foot sail boat. They were anxious to see the sets for "Mandalay," a picture with its background in Burma, because they had passed through that country on their trip. They CAPITOL Style and cut of gowns THEATRE worn in Egypt during the time of Cleopatra are almost identical with evening gowns of the present time. It was discovered by Cecil B. DeMille, director of Paramount's "Cleopatra," now at the Capitol Theatre. The costumes made up for Claudette Colbert, who plays the title role in the picture, although adhering to authentic detail, are easily adaptable to modern wear.

PLAYHOUSE Allison Skipworth THEATRE puts on her glad rags, the best she has, for the role of a swanky society racketeer in "Coming Out Party," Jesse L. Lasky's new production for Fox Film, now at the Playhouse Theatre. Other principals are Frances Dee, Gene Raymond and Nigel Bruce, with a supporting cast that includes Harry Green, Gilbert Emery, Marjorie Gateson, Clifford Jones, Jessie Ralph and Germaine de Neel. John Blystone directed.

In speaking of the work of Florence Gunn, who will appear in recital on Thursday, October 18, at the Empress Hotel, George Dyke, local critic, says: "Florence Gunn demonstrated her excellent vocal abilities. Her delightfully fresh voice of wide range was pleasing, and her singing was marked by fluency, understanding and expression. Her clear enunciation is quite enjoyable. She evidently, too, is a sincere worker. Her singing brought much applause."

Kills Big Cougar At Rocky Point

Walter Parker, an eighteen-year-old youth, of Rocky Point, is now the proud possessor of a handsome trophy in the form of an eight-foot cougar. On Sunday, Walter, and his two trusty cougar hounds, trailed the beast, which had killed five sheep, for over a mile in the vicinity of Rocky Point before it was treed and shot.

The young hunter is the son of Herbert Parker, himself a former cougar hunter of wide renown.

TRUSTEES FAVOR COUNCIL MOTIONS

Will Enforce Rules Respecting Employees Living in City Wherever It Is Reasonable

There was considerable surprise in aldermanic circles at the City Hall yesterday when a letter was received from the school board stating that resolutions passed by the council concerning the place of residence of civic employees would be put into effect by the board where it was reasonably possible to do so.

At the school board meeting the resolutions from the City Council were simply received, noted and filed. There was no debate, and no indication that the trustees either favored or disapproved of the motion.

The resolutions called for preference being shown local residents in all future appointments; that all civic employees be resident in Victoria except in the case of unusual circumstances; either health or financial, and that a questionnaire be sent to determine how many live outside the city and what their reasons are for doing so.

Little Bedtime Stories

Why Ol' Mistah Buzzard Has a Red Head

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Peter Rabbit had asked Ol' Mistah Buzzard to please tell him why he had a red head. Ol' Mistah Buzzard had cleared his throat as if he was going to begin a long story, then he had coughed once or twice, and finally he told Peter he would think about it and to come the next day. So the next day Peter was on hand and with him were Johnny Chuck and Jimmy Skunk and Striped Chipmunk and Danny Meadow Mouse and Billy Mink and Happy Jack Squirrel and a lot more of the little meadow and forest people, for Peter Rabbit had passed the word along that Ol' Mistah Buzzard was going to tell a story and no one wanted to miss it.

"Once upon-a time," began Ol' Mistah Buzzard, "a long time ago, a very long time ago, Ol' Grandpaw Buzzard was sitting by himself on a tall dead pine tree way down South Grandpaw Buzzard was feeling mighty pert. Yes, sah, he sho'ly was feeling mighty pert. Yo' see he had beaten Ol' King Eagle flying. He had flown out of sight straight up in the sky and had gone so high that the sun had burned all the feathers off his head, had Grandpaw Buzzard. So in spite of his sore head, Grandpaw Buzzard was feeling mighty pleased with himself. He chuckled as he thought how plumb foolish Ol' King Eagle had looked.

"He was still chuckling when he noticed a great fuss over the edge of the woods. He could hear Ol' King Eagle a-screaming, and he knew by the sound that Ol' King Eagle was feeling powerful put out about something. So Grandpaw Buzzard just spread his wings and sailed over to see what it all meant. When he got there he found that Ol' King Eagle was feeling mean, just as mean as pizen, and he was a-letting some of it out on poor Ol' Mistah Sparrow Hawk, because Mistah Sparrow Hawk had laughed at Ol' King Eagle when he lost the race to Grandpaw Buzzard.

"Now, Grandpaw Buzzard had long claws and a hooked bill just like Ah has mah own self, but they never were meant for fighting like Ol' King Eagle's. But Grandpaw Buzzard, he didn't stop to think about that. No, sah, he wasn't letting a little thing like that bother him none. Because why? Because his dader had riz when he saw po' Ol' Mistah Sparrow Hawk being knocked around by Ol' King Eagle. "So Grandpaw Buzzard didn't wait fo' to pass the time of day, but jes' jumped right in. Mah goodness aakes alive! Ah aspects that was one of the worse mixups ever was seen. They hammered each other with their wings, and they scratched each other with their claws, and they pulled the feathers outen each other wile their bills.

"At Ol' Mistah Sparrow Hawk, he jes' crawled plumb out of sight in a helter-skelter way. Now Ol' Grandpaw Buzzard never did believe in foolishness, nohow. All the time he was a-clawing and a-pounding Ol' King Eagle he was keeping one eye on Ol' Mistah Sparrow Hawk, and as soon as he was safe in the holier tree Grandpaw took the first chance to break away and fly off.

"Ol' King Eagle, he screamed: 'Coward! Coward!' just like that, because Grandpaw wouldn't stay and fight. But Grandpaw Buzzard didn't have any quarrel with Ol' King Eagle now that Ol' Mistah Sparrow Hawk was safe, so he just let Ol' King Eagle enjoy himself a-hollering.

"When Grandpaw Buzzard got back to his ol' dead tree he found his po' head, which had been very tender where Mr. Sun burned the feathers off when he beat Ol' King Eagle in the race up into the sky, had been so scratched and clawed in the fight that it was bleeding so that it was all red. Long comes Ol' Mother Nature jes' then and she say: 'Mistah Buzzard, Ah am going to give yo' a red head, and yo' children shall have red heads jes' to shame Ol' King Eagle and his children fo' bullying po' Ol' Mistah Sparrow Hawk.' And that is how Ah comes to have a red head," concluded Ol' Mistah Buzzard proudly.

APPEALING FINE FOR CONTEMPT

Hearing Started at Edmonton of Case of Editor and Reporter

EDMONTON, Oct. 15 (CP).—Arguing that Mr. Justice W. C. Ives was within his rights when he summarily convicted and fined Charles E. Campbell and J. S. Cowper, publisher and reporter, respectively, of The Edmonton Bulletin, for contempt of court in connection with articles appearing in The Bulletin on the Brownlee seduction trial, W. S. Gray, K.C., agent for the Attorney-General, asked the Appeal Court, today, to dismiss or quash the appeal and motion to quash the original conviction made on behalf of Mr. Campbell and Mr. Cowper.

Mr. Gray contended there was no right of appeal in this case, but this submission was disputed by S. Bruce Smith, associate counsel for the appellants.

The appeal will continue tomorrow.

DELVES INTO HISTORY
Delving back into legal history for hundreds of years, Mr. Smith argued that an alleged contempt should be made the subject of an indictment. Mr. Gray argued that Mr. Justice Ives was within his rights in dealing summarily with the alleged contempt. He declared that precedent showed amply that a newspaper editor must take the responsibility for everything that appears in the newspaper.

The editor, he said, could not shift blame onto a reporter with the excuse that he had not seen an article before it was published.

Trial by newspaper, Mr. Gray continued, would not be tolerated in this country. A newspaper had the right to fairly report proceedings of a public trial, but had no right to comment on them in such a way as to impede the administration of justice.

At one point Mr. Gray said: "I am asking Your Lordships to read the articles in The Bulletin."

NOT PART OF RECORD

H. H. Parlee, K.C., leading counsel for Mr. Campbell and Mr. Cowper, protested, saying the articles were not part of the record.

"I can quite understand your not wanting them read," commented Mr. Gray.

Mr. Justice McMillan said it would be up to Mr. Gray to show that the articles were part of the record before he could expect the court to read them. He also commented, in regard to the speed with which the contempt fines were levied: "There is enough in the record to convince me that it was pretty quick work."

Enfield Is Made Favorite in Big Racing Classic

NEWMARKET, England, Oct. 15 (CP)—Marshall Field's Enfield, carrying the comparatively low weight of 108 pounds, is today favorite for the Cesarewitch Handicap of two and a quarter miles, to be run here next Wednesday. Enfield is quoted at 8 to 1.

Sir Frederick Eley's four-year-old Soler Boy, at 21 to 2, is second choice. Frankie Frisch to Manage Cardinals For Another Term

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 15 (AP)—Frankie Frisch, who drove the madcap Cardinals to the National League pennant and a world series triumph over Detroit Tigers in his first full year as a manager, today quietly signed a contract to lead the club again in 1935. Terms of the contract, Frisch said, would not be disclosed.

One of the greatest infielders of modern baseball, Frisch jumped directly from the Fordham campus to New York Giants, and came to St. Louis in the winter of 1926-27 in a trade which sent Rogers Hornsby to New York. In the middle of the 1933 campaign, he relieved Gabby Street as manager of the Cardinals.

The final score was 10 to 7 and the victory was the Toronto squad's fourth of the season without a defeat.

Saanich Thistles to Oppose Greenshirts In Important Match

Football Leaders Clash in First Game of Twin Bill at Athletic Park Saturday—Victoria City to Meet Esquimalt

Leadership of the first division of the Victoria and District Football League will be at stake, Saturday afternoon, when Victoria West and the Saanich Thistles, first and second berth occupants, respectively, clash in the first game of the double soccer programme at the Royal Athletic Park, at 2:15 o'clock. In the second half of the twin bill, Victoria City will oppose Esquimalt. The kick-off for this match is set for 3:45 o'clock.

Registering a 5-3 victory over Esquimalt last Saturday while Victoria City humbled the Thistles, former leaders, 2-1, Victoria West slipped into undisputed occupation of the coveted position, one point in front of the Saanich eleven.

Saturday, the greenshirts will be out at full strength in hopes of turning back the lads from the suburban area, and by so doing, increase their lead in the race for the Garrison Cup, symbolic of the league championship.

Three weeks ago, in their first meeting of the season, the teams battled to a 1-1 score, after a great match.

Two matches are billed in the second division, with the Saanich Thistles opposing Victoria City, at Heywood Avenue, and Victoria West playing James Island at Bullen's Park. Both fixtures will start at 2:45 o'clock.

EXPLANATION FOR SUNDAY'S RIPLEY CARTOON

The Giant That Hath Warred With Heaven—The "Old Man of Hoy" is the tallest of all rock pillars or "stacks" created as a result of the sea's erosion of the shore cliffs of England. It is a pinnacle 450 feet high and stands in rugged majesty upon the Island of Hoy, in the Orkneys. It is very old. Tradition affirms that many generations back the Old Man stood on two legs, one of which has since yielded to the attacks of the sea. It is believed that "the giant has warred with heaven" and that "his ruined scalp has been thunder-riven" in the affray.

The Dowry of Queen Margaret—When Margaret, the daughter of Christian I of Denmark, married James III of Scotland in July, 1469, the Danish King promised her a dowry of 60,000 Rhenish florins in cash (about $20,000), ten thousand florins payable immediately and the balance on the installment plan. As the King was only able to raise 2,000 florins immediately, he had to pledge the Orkney and Shetland Islands as security for the sum. The dowry was never paid and as a result the Islands became the property of Scotland.

Red Cap May Be Poor Safeguard But Gets Moose

Brooklyn Hunter Says "Phooey" on Crimson Headgear for Moose Hunting

MONTREAL, Oct. 15 (CP)—Red hunting caps are all right as headgear—they look snappy, they keep your ears warm and protect you from other hunters—but for safety in the bush, R. G. Smith, of Brooklyn, says "phooey."

Moosehunter Smith figures he owes his moose to his red cap and scorns learned explanations that moose are not affected by the color red.

"Your moose are behind the times. They are not up in what they should do and what they shouldn't. I maintain the bull I shot charged me because he saw the red cap I was wearing," explained Smith. "So as a safety device—phooey."

LACROSSE CIRCLES STIRRED BY CONTROVERSY

President Charges Refereeing Poor in Finals of Mann Cup

Says Salmonbellies Spent Thirty Minutes More on Benches Than New Champions—Orillia Leader Denies All Allegations

ORILLIA, Ont., Oct. 15 (CP).—Only amusement spread through Orillia lacrosse circles tonight, as the statement of Dan McKenzie, president of the Canadian Amateur Lacrosse Association, was perused. Mr. McKenzie attacked the refereeing at the Dominion lacrosse finals, in Barrie, between Orillia Terriers and New Westminster Salmonbellies, and he charged that all was not well between players and Orillia management.

It was "all very interesting," to Dr. R. E. Hipwell, member of the Orillia executive, who declared Terriers "never at any time refused to play or go on the floor." He added: "If Salmonbellies spent thirty minutes on the bench than Terriers, it was their own fault. The refereeing, so far as we understand it, was perfect. The whole thing is a gross exaggeration."

Walter Scott, another member of the executive, commented: "So far as I know, we won the Mann Cup fairly."

Peter Stover, another member of the executive, said: "I am very surprised to hear the head of such an organization bringing in such a weak alibi."

REFEREEING POOR

NEW WESTMINSTER, Oct. 15 (CP).—Criticism of the management of the Orillia Terriers lacrosse team, and of the refereeing in the Dominion championship series between Terriers and New Westminster Salmonbellies, was voiced today by Dan McKenzie, president of the Canadian Amateur Lacrosse Association, on his return here.

"The refereeing was the poorest seen in a Mann Cup series in some years," he said. "The Western team spent thirty minutes more on the bench than did Terriers."

POWERFUL SQUAD

Mr. McKenzie stated the Orillia team is one of the most powerful squads ever to win the Mann trophy. He severely criticized the team management, however.

"Their action in traveling Westwards without permission of the C.A.L.A. was typical of their actions throughout the series," he said. "I understand that Cook, their manager, is under indefinite suspension by his provincial body, yet he appeared in the middle of the floor in the last game. Likewise, we were never certain whether the team would finish the series, and I am told that, in the last game, the players over-ruled the management and went on and played."

WILL STAND FIRM

The president declared he would stand firm on the association's edict against the post-season series between Orillia and St. Helens, of Vancouver, to be held here, and for which the Terriers are en route West.

"The ruling was not mine alone," he said, "but that of one of the most representative meetings the Dominion body has ever had. When we met, we had little or no information from Orillia or Vancouver regarding the series. The Orillia management was asked to submit the proposition in writing and failed to do so."

MAKES REPLY

TORONTO, Oct. 15 (CP).—East-lacrosse refereeing is named above that in the West, declared "Hank" Goudie, one of the referees who officiated in recent Mann Cup series, at Barrie, between Orillia Terriers and New Westminster Salmonbellies for the lacrosse championship of Canada.

Mr. Goudie was replying to a reported statement of Dan E. McKenzie, president of the Canadian Amateur Lacrosse Association, that the refereeing in the recently-completed Mann Cup games was the finest he had seen in a Mann Cup series in some years.

Mr. Goudie thought the work of the referees here much superior to that of Andy Paul, a Western appointee, at the series between Winnipeg and Mimico, two years ago.

Replying to a statement attributed to Mr. McKenzie, that the Western team spent thirty minutes more on the bench than did the Terriers,

Mr. Goudie said: "If anyone saw the way the game was played, he'd say they were lucky they didn't spend more than that."

Bruce Leighton, of Toronto, the other referee, was out of the city and his comment could not be obtained.

The referees, according to Mr. Goudie, were appointed by Mr. McKenzie and Eugene Dopp, of Toronto, secretary of the Ontario Amateur Lacrosse Association.

ALEX MARLING SUCCUMBS IN CITY HOSPITAL

Popular Royal Colwood Golf Club Professional Dies of Pneumonia

ALEX MARLING

One of Victoria's best-known sportsmen, Alexander Marling, professional at the Royal Colwood Golf Club since 1922, died in St. Joseph's Hospital, yesterday, following an attack of pneumonia. He was taken ill last Tuesday.

Funeral services will be held at Hayward's B.C. Funeral Chapel, tomorrow, at 2 p.m., and interment will be made in Royal Oak Burial Park.

Popular as a sportsman and known as a real friend to many, Mr. Marling's passing will be mourned by a large circle of acquaintances. Through his ability as a professional and his engaging personality and winning smile, his name became familiar wherever golfers congregated in the Pacific Northwest.

FINE INSTRUCTOR

Although Mr. Marling played little golf in recent years, owing to the loss of an eye in the Great War, he was considered one of the foremost instructors in Western Canada. Many of Victoria's leading golfers declare they owe their proficiency to his guiding hand.

Prior to his coming to Victoria, Mr. Marling was for two years professional at Regina, which position he took following his discharge from the army. He served overseas with the Scottish forces, having enlisted in his native land.

Mr. Marling had a fine golf record in Scotland prior to the war, having won the Scottish professional championship in 1913 against all the veterans and well-known players of the time. He was then professional at the Royal Aberdeen Golf Club.

FAMILY HERE

Mr. Marling was an ardent supporter of the British Columbia Professional Golfers' Association, and held a position on the executive committee of the organization. He was born fifty years ago in Lonsdalemouth, Scotland.

He is survived by his wife, one son, A. J. Marling, and one daughter, Miss Kathleen Marling, all at the family residence, 2950 Alhambra Street; his stepmother in Aberdeen, Scotland; two brothers, James, of Montreal, and Arthur, of Tacoma, and a sister, Flora, in Aberdeen.

Riot Police Squads Called at Milwaukee As Fans Jeer Deans

Famous Brother Pitching Team of World Champion St. Louis Cardinals Have Hectic Session—Customers Ask Money Refund

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 15 (AP).—The Dean brothers, loudly cheered as heroes of the world series, were loudly jeered today and disappointed fans raised such a roar that police squads appeared at Borchert Field. Scheduled to divide nine innings of an exhibition game, "Dizzy" and "Daffy" Dean did as little as possible for 5 1-2 innings and went to collect their portion from a gate of about $3,300.

DEMAND REFUND

A few minutes later some of the fans followed the pair to the sixth office to demand a refund. Riot squads arrived.

Supported by seven barnstormers, the Deans opposed the Kansas City Monarchs, a Negro team, in a game called at the end of the ninth with the score eight-all. "Dizzy" pitched the first two innings, allowed a run on two walks and single and then retired to leftfield for four more innings.

Presumably because of his sore arm, "Daffy" remained aloof of the pitcher's box, working in rightfield. Without waiting for their time at bat in the last of the sixth, the Deans walked off the field and the catcalls arose.

FEAR FOX IS OUT FOR GOOD

Barnstormers' Agent Says Jimmie "May Not Don Uniform Again"

SEATTLE, Oct. 15 (AP).—Fear that Jimmie Fox, first-baseman of the Philadelphia Athletics and one of the best hitters in the game today, may have been permanently injured when he was hit in the head in a game at Winnipeg, a week ago, was expressed here today by Herb Hester, advance agent for the American League all-stars team.

"He was in no shape to play ball at Spokane, yesterday, but arrived there drowsy and wanted to sleep all the time. There is no chance for him to play here, and he may never don a uniform again," Hester said.

Fox was in a Winnipeg hospital for several days.

The decision whether he will make the trip to the Orient will be made by Connie Mack, on his arrival here Thursday, Hester said.

LORNE CHABOT REFUSES OFFER

Chicago Black Hawks Terminate Negotiations with Former Goalie

CHICAGO, Oct. 15 (AP).—Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, today, ended all negotiations with Lorne Chabot, veteran goalie, who, last year, played with Montreal Canadiens, because of a salary disagreement.

Chabot, who was a part of the original deal in which Howie Morenz came to the Hawks from Canadiens and Lionel Conacher went to Montreal Maroons, held out for the salary received by the late Chuck Gardiner. The Hawk management refused, and today invited Samuel "Porky" Levine, Canadian-born goalie for the Kansas City Club of the American Association, last year, to vie with Joe Starke for a regular job with the Stanley Cup holders.

Shunt Welter Mix Two Days

VANCOUVER, Oct. 15 (CP).—Matchmaker Jack Allen announced tonight that the scheduled six-round welterweight bout between Emil "Younger" Lust, of Medicine Hat, Alta., and Gordon Wallace, of Vancouver, has been postponed from Wednesday until Friday night.

The postponement was made because the original date would conflict with the opening game of the exhibition lacrosse series between Orillia Terriers and St. Helens.

The winner of the Lust-Wallace fight will be matched with Billy Townsend, next month, in a twelve or fifteen-round bout for the Canadian welterweight title.

Leading Stocks Drift Lower at New York Mart

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP).—Speculative markets dragged with a heavy step today. Both stocks and commodities, deprived of inflationary stimulus, sagged in dull trading. The sparkle along the financial front came chiefly from the Government bond market and silver quarters.

United States Treasury bonds moved forward with fresh vigor after the financial community had studied the implications of the latest Liberty Loan redemption call and President Roosevelt's haste in discouraging inflation talk. Spot silver rose more than a cent an ounce, crossing 55c for the first time in five years, following China's imposition of a 10 per cent export tax on the metal.

Turnover dwindled to 508,176 shares. Eastman Kodak, American Chicle and American Snuff sold at new 1934 tops. Strength in some of the secondary motor shares accompanied rumormongers of efforts to work out a consolidation in the field.

American Smelting, Howe Sound and other silver shares responded to the strength in the metal. American Can, Bethlehem Steel, Santa Fe, Chrysler, General Electric and United States Steel ruled easier.

Most commodities followed equities on the reaction. United States Government securities and other prime investment loans developed a firm tone in today's bond market. Subsidies of the Government list, claims ranged from 1-32 to 5-8 of a point. Foreign obligations were quiet and fairly firm.

Virginia Vane Says:

THREE YEARS' COURTSHIP TOO LONG FOR RETICENCE REGARDING MATRIMONY

Dear Virginia Vane: I have been in love with a man for three years and have gone with no one else. This man is older than I am, has a good deal of charm and is attractive to women. He has been absolutely faithful to me during these three years, but has never mentioned marriage—which hurts me a great deal.

For some time I thought that his reticence was due to the fact that he had financial difficulties and was not in a position to suggest marriage. But he now has a good job and we could live comfortably on his salary. I don't honestly know what to do. Do you think I am foolish to worry about marriage at all? I am twenty-six years old and he is thirty-five. I do love him but I cannot be happy wondering and worrying all the time—Janet.

Forget the maidenly modesty and ask a few point-blank questions, my girl. No man has a right to monopolize a girl's time for three years and not make a single sound suggestive of wedding bells. No man who really cares for his lady love will allow her to go on in this uncertain fashion for an indefinite period.

And I'm afraid I don't believe much in this theory that financial difficulties kept an impassioned suitor from popping the question. Romances don't usually work that way. The very much-in-love and anxious-to-be-married man takes his sweetheart into his confidence about his business troubles. He says: "I do want to marry you but at the moment it's impossible because funds are low."

It's only in the good old story-books that we find a man of such nobility that he dares not breathe the word matrimony until he is able to wave a substantial bank account in the face of his lady fair.

So I think we must assume that this charming hero of yours, Janet, is just letting things drift because it's so comfortable. The semi-engagement appeals to some men who do not welcome responsibilities, and who are anxious to preserve their bachelorhood. A half-engaged girl can usually be depended on to devote all her time to the man she loves. He finds a ready welcome in her home whenever he cares to call. He is usually on petting terms with his enamored sweetheart. What more does he want? Life is very pleasant and since he has no matrimonial ideas, he is content to let the state of affairs remain just as it is.

But it's hard on the girl, and it's up to her to stand up for herself. She has everything to lose by this long-drawn-out affair. Some day when her hero tires of the pretty little imitation engagement, she'll be left on the shelf—just so-and-so's discarded girl friend. And she'll find it almighty hard work to get back into the swim again. For her own sake, she must either cut short the meaningless romance—or arrange her life so that it includes more than one man.

Go ahead and ask your devoted admirer, Janet, just what he intends to do about making your relationship permanent. And don't blush. The man in the case is the one to do the blushing. Make that clear.

OVERCOMING PARENTAL OBJECTIONS

G. A. G.: No use kicking against the traces. If mother and father are against boy friends, then boy friends are out of the question so long as you're dependent on your parents for support.

It isn't fair, and it won't work out to your advantage, to make friendships behind your parents' back. The right sort of boy won't meet his girl friend on street corners in order to avoid her mother and father. So that any relationship you may enter into on a clandestine basis would be detrimental to your happiness.

What you've got to do is to work to make yourself independent. You are right in thinking that it would be folly for you to run away from home as some of your girl friends have done. That accomplishes no good at all.

When you have prepared yourself to take a job, you can talk to your parents with some assurance. You can tell them that you propose either to go away and make a life for yourself—or else remain with them, helping to share the household expenses, on the strict understanding that you're allowed to make young friends.

Until the day when you're independent you cannot expect to run your life in direct opposition to your parents' wishes. So, instead of brooding over the injustice of your fate, and plotting to outwit the older generation—get busy about arranging to secure complete financial independence as soon as possible.

Dear Virginia Vane: I enjoyed the letter you wrote to Mrs. K. P. I believe you are absolutely right in saying that the mother of the boy can forgive her best friend, if she will be tolerant and wise. Older women are notoriously weak in the face of a young boy's flattery, and I can find some pity for the woman who betrayed her woman friend. Mrs. K. P. will save herself and her son from unhappiness if she will be understanding enough to forgive and forget.

Y.M.C.A. DRIVE IS SUCCESSFUL

Some 270 New Members Secured in Campaign—Membership High

There was great rejoicing at the Y.M.C.A. last night, when, as its annual membership campaign was officially closed, it was found that the drive had eclipsed any in the history of the association.

Starting on October 5 to bring the total adult membership in the organization to 500 persons, the teams did more than that and the figure now stands at 528 members. The drive last year brought the 1933 total to 422 members.

In the ten-day campaign, 270 new members and renewed subscriptions, having a total valuation of $2,837, were secured. In the 1933 drive, 185 members were enlisted, with a subscription value of $1,829.

MANY NEW MEMBERS
Since Thursday, it was shown, 106 new members, having a value of $992, had been secured by teams. Throughout the campaign, Leonard Hall was high man, having secured twenty-two members. Samuel Hill, captain of "M" division's first team, headed the group securing the most members.

Morval Peterson, major of "Y" division, reported seventy-seven new members, valued at $809; Warren W. Martin, major of "M" division, reported eighty-three members, valued at $870; Noel Collinson, major of "C" division, reported thirty-eight members, valued at $406.50, and J. V. Johnson, major of "A" division, reported seventy-two members, valued at $691.

LATE REPORTS
Delinquent contact reports will be submitted on Friday evening at a dinner meeting of captains and majors in the Y.M.C.A. at 6:15 o'clock.

E. G. Rowebottom, campaign manager, paid glowing tribute to teams and captains in the membership campaign.

H. B. Witter, president of the local association, was highly pleased with the result. He, however, urged the workers not to stop securing new members, although the campaign was officially closed. "The whole thing was most gratifying," he stated.

I Can and I Will

A Valuable Health Slogan

Because fear and worry and discouragement are usual symptoms of nervous disorders, it is important that you assert your will power. Dwelling on the thought that you are a nervous wreck tends to hold you down and delay the return of health.

It is necessary to take advantage of restorative treatment. Rich, nourishing blood is required to restore nerve force to the depleted nervous system.

But especially in derangements of the nerves you should reckon with the influence of mind over matter.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will supply the elements of nerve force. You can greatly hasten the return of health by adopting this motto "I can and I will." Refuse to be worried and blue and discouraged. Assert your control over habits which are holding you down.

Be master of your health.

Revellers Club Plays Important Part in Service Club Council Work

F. DUDLEY WICKERT

The Revellers Club, which is conducting a contest to secure a new name more symbolic of its aims and objects, plays an important part in the work of the local Service Clubs' Council.

F. Dudley Wickert, of the Revellers, is president, and Travers G. M. Custance is secretary-treasurer of the council. The club also has another representative on the council in the person of T. A. Stevenson.

The Service Clubs' Council was formed with the object of unifying service club activity in the community and includes: Kiwanis, Rotary, Gyros, Business and Professional Women's Club, Soroptimists, Kinsmen and Revellers. They were responsible for the visit of the Seattle Symphony Orchestra in 1930, 1931 and 1932, which proved outstanding successes in every instance. It is hoped that it will be possible to sponsor them again this year.

BOOK REVEALS CONVERSATION

Says Lord Carson Would Have Plead Guilty if Prosecuted

LONDON, Oct. 15 (CP Cable).—A remarkable conversation between the late Lord Asquith and Lord Carson some years after the "Home Rule" crisis in Ireland, was revealed today with publication of the second volume of "Lord Carson's Life."

During the height of Ulster's resistance to home rule under leadership of Carson, there were many demands for Carson's prosecution. When greater events—the war—had receded, Asquith told Carson he never intended to prosecute him, because he feared he could not secure a conviction.

"You need have had no fear," said Carson, "for I should have pleaded guilty."

"Guilty?" asked the astonished Asquith.

WAS LOYAL SUBJECT

"Yes," Carson replied to the then Prime Minister. "I should have said I was born under the British flag and was a loyal subject of His Majesty. So much do I value this birthright that I was even prepared to rebel in order to defend it. If to fight so as to remain loyal myself a loyal subject of His Majesty be my crime, I should have pleaded guilty."

"And where," Carson added, "would you have been then?"

"That only shows," said Asquith, "that I was even wiser in not prosecuting you than I thought I was."

NEW AUTHOR

The author of this second volume is Ian Colvin, Hon. Edward Marjoribanks, suffered accidental death soon after completing the first volume.

Until the war changed everything, and Carson consented to dividing Northern Ireland from the rest of the country which became independent, Carson was unrelenting in his opposition to home rule. In 1912 he successfully engineered the covenant by which at Belfast in that year thousands bound themselves to refuse to recognize any home rule parliament.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"LIBEL" is curious to observe the natural and logical process of development by which the word "libel" acquired its meaning as a defamatory publication, done maliciously, which exposes somebody to public ridicule or contempt. The publication may take the form of a cartoon, photograph, satire, and the like, and is punishable at law.

The word "libel" is derived from the Latin "liber" which meant the inner bark of a tree.

Because this bark was used generally to write upon, it was not long before a parchment, roll or pamphlet was called "libellus"—a diminutive of "libel"—and meaning literally "little book."

And it was because of the ease and anonymity attending the circulation of unfavorable matter on printed handbills or booklets, that the term "libel" became associated with a scandalous report, or the dissemination of defamatory material, involving legal consequences.

Mother: Bobbie, I've told you a dozen times you can't have any more chocolates. If you ask again, I'll punish you.

Bobbie: Oh! Then you didn't mean what you told me yesterday about persevering!

FATAL PROCRASTINATION

Plays meant to fool the opponents and cause them to do what they shouldn't or not to do what they should, are likely to be particularly effective when made at the beginning of a hand. For this there are several excellent reasons. First, the opponents at this stage of the play know less about the hand than they do in the later rounds, and are therefore reckoning with possibilities rather than actualities. Second, they have not yet had much time to think. Third, some players have the unfortunate habit of postponing their decisions, even when it would be mentally possible to make them earlier, until it is too late. Against these chronic procrastinators, of course, early surprise plays are even more effective than against the generalty of players. Procrastination is the thief not only of time, but of tricks.

In today's hand the South player avoided the danger of forcing East to make the vital decision of the hand—whether or not to discard a king—on the second trick.
